

The Arlington Theatre in Santa Barbara, Calif., looked like this before the proscenium opening was enlarged in a recent overall modernization project. The unusual original proscenium treatment, with the wide stone arch made the enlargement comparatively simple by the removal of the arch. The general Fox West Coast program of more spacious seating, new decorations, stereophonic sound installation and automatic air conditioning was carried out in this theatre also.

