Variety Revue

"Blackouts of 1942," title of the variety revue coming to the new El Capitan Theater next Wednesday night, has nothing to do with air-raid wardens, fire watchers, stalled traffic, etc., because it's not that kind of a blackout.

Rather it refers to one of the oldest and most successful forms of presenting entertainment in the theater and originated with the installation of electricity in the theaters.

It has become a stand-by for musical revues and vaudeville to black out the stage on a gag laugh situation or line of dialogue. Ken Murray and Billy Gilbert's offering will contain a series of these.
